Longfin, 24 minutes

Producer / Director Lindsey Davidson & Melissa Salpietra

3rd place in People's Choice Award

This is the life of one Longfin Eel and its incredible journey through the rivers of New Zealand. At the start of the journey, that may take a century to complete, the eel is guided past the dangers of the river by the instinct of its ancestors.

Kayaks on the Roof of the World, 28 minutes

Producer
/ Director Sharyn Smith & Chris Jones

Winner: Culture &
Environment Award

In 2005 a group of kayakers journeyed to the remote and wild Parlung Tsangpo in Eastern Tibet to attempt the first descent of the river. While the expedition members challenge high altitude and difficult whitewater, for the first time ever, a small group of Tibetans are learning to kayak and discovering the joys and frustrations of river running.

Metlako Falls, Eagle Creek, 6 minutes

Producer
/ Director Jonathan Ramsay

Nominee: Adrenaline
Award

Rolf Kelly has had his eye on Metlako Falls for 13 years but his bad back has put the 102ft waterfall out of his kayaking reach. He finds the answer to this challenge in an S16 Firestone inner tube.

Rain is falling, 15minutes

Producer / Director Holger
Ernst

Winner: Short Film Award

In a time when all borders or ethnic, religious and cltural differences are being questioned, this film makes a connection. It encourages a dialogue between the worlds of strangers.

Super8Man, 10 minutes

Producer / Director Alexandra
Porter

2nd place in People's Choice Award

Super8Man's camera is poised for the ultimate shot of a bird in flight. Propelled into a cyclical journey, his focus literally remains on infinity.

Voie d'eau, 11 minutes

Producer
La Femis; Director Mathieu-David Cournot

Nominee: Short Film Award

Sarah won't answer the phone anymore. She lost her unborn child. Lying next to the cradle, she is drifting...until she puts her finger in a glass of water and discovers that she can travel to some unknown underwater world.

Tumeke, 32
minutes

Producer / Director Jason Hancox

Winner: Adrenalin
Award

The New Zealand
ski film covering most of the commercial fields and the top free-ski athletes.

Middle Kaweah Expedition, 17 minutes

Producer /
Director Scott Lingren

Winner: Adventure & Expedition Award

An account of the six day Middle Kaweah first descent in California. A full-on self supported multi day kayaking trip.
